"Rebuilding" Carthage.
Rising over the ruins of ancient Carthage and the surrounding hills, rich in history, is a modern city of residential villas. Archeologists point out that if this building is permitted to continue, their excavation work will be seriously hampered, as the new proprietors object to invasions of their yards by workmen, no matter what treasures of history may lie underneath. Two French government employees of the department of Tunis lately bought a piece of ground on the site of the old city, and before building their house started to find out what was underneath the surface. After patient digging they discovered a temple of Tanit. Unless the French government stops the sale, real estate agents will shortly put on the market some 240 acres of the site of Carthage at a total sale price of $300,000.

NEW YORKERS BURNING WOOD

Builders, It Is Said, Are Being Bo-sieged by Householders Asking for Old Lumber.

Householders in all parts of New York, according to the observations of policemen, are collecting a great deal of firewood this fall. This is taken to indicate that many of them are anticipating a coal shortage during the coming winter.

In backyard sections everywhere it is a common sight to see the male members of the family busily engaged in splitting boards and lumber into kindling wood. This firewood, as a householder expressed it, is not intended to supplant coal, but to help save it.

"At this time last year," a builder said, "I used to give wood away occasionally when I was tearing down or repairing old buildings. I used to hang out a sign reading, 'Wood given away free for the asking.' My only stipulation was that persons applying for it should cart it away for themselves. It may surprise you when I tell you that my wood often went begging. It is quite different this year. I do not have to hang out a sign; every day I am besieged by men, women and children soliciting old lumber for firewood. There are so many of these applicants that I have to turn most of them away."

"I am sure that this demand for firewood means that much more wood is going to be burned in fires this winter than in the past."

PUTTING IT UP TO TINSMITH

Mr. Filjit Wants to Know Why Stove-pipe Is Always Adjusted to Such Small Dimensions.

One of the unsolved mysteries of everyday life is why a stovepipe man will always make a stovepipe too small. Give him the old pipe as a pattern and he will send a new piece that can't be put on even with a shoe horn, remarks a New York Sun writer. Filjit had a handgrip around his finger when he got to the office the other morning and explained that he had vainly tried to adjust a piece of stovepipe that was too small.

"If it had been an inch too large it would have been all right," he said, "for it rested on the stove and could not come off. But that tinsmith believed in a snug fit, and he made the pipe so small that I had to send it back after working with it for half an hour and cutting my finger."

Two other men in the office said they had similar experiences the last week and no one could offer an explanation of the thinness of the stovepipe.

The Wonderful Tree

By Christopher G. Hazard

(Copyright, 1933, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT STOOD in the corner of a rather needy room. It was festooned with strings of popcorn and cables of cranberries. Wispes of tissue paper and tinsel ornaments were out upon the branches, and small candles stood ready to illuminate the occasion. There were many invisible things upon the tree, too. The imaginations of the children had been as busy as their dreams. Family resources may be limited, but there are no bounds in the realm of Santa Claus and hope. In the magical Christmas time the clouds of poverty are all as glided and beautiful as any sunset can furnish. Anything may happen then. Cinderella is as hopeful as her more favored sisters; not an urchin but has an expectant eye. So the Tanner Christmas tree was as beautiful as a picture and as full of presents as a picture could be.

But, however pictured by fancy and made of good wishes, the presents were all invisible. No one could see what was in the heads of the dreamers and the hearts of the anxious but needy providers. For weeks the mill had been closed, and now the family pocketbook was about empty. Father Tanner looked at the tree, could not see a gift on it, and shook his head. Mother Tanner was inclined to make the best of it.

Yes, the tree was one of the family. It had been the tree of last year's Christmas and the tree of the year before that. It was a tree that kept its evergreen habit and that did not seem to grow old. It was like a living tree, made to bring forth its fruit every year. It had been so good to them that they had named it Bountiful. And now it stood there in the dark, all dressed up, but with nothing but blossoms, without any fruit. It could see the hurrying children running to their morning disappointment. It could hear their cries of surprise and chagrin. Silly Sam, more needy of amusement than the others, would look in vain for his expected go-cart; Sue would miss the two dress patterns for her big doll, her new hat and high chair for her little doll; Bill Tanner would not get his skates; Dick would still need a sled. It was anything but a merry tree.

But it was a wonderful tree. It had a power of making itself felt all over a neighborhood. It could summon Santa Claus by a kind of wireless message that went through walls and everything. It reached as far as the folks who were having a Christmas eve party two blocks away and made them think of Mr. Folsom's mill boss and Mrs. Folsom's laundry woman. They had been wishing for some new fun for their party that day and now it came into their heads to go over and be Santa for the Tanners. So the tree drew a very silent but very busy company to the Tanners' back door.

As the children had left directions for Santa on the table it was easy to find out what the tree was expected to do, so, presently, it did it. There was more, too, than orders for the wanted things; the merry-makers had brought with them enough to satisfy any reasonable tree; there were picture books, picture puzzles, games, a scissors grinder that could make the sparks fly, a train of cars that could go, a doll that could say "mama," and candy enough to go round. For Father and Mother Tanner there was a pocketbook with gold in it, and a note of good cheer that was better than the gold.

So the wonderful tree spent the rest of the night in trembling joy. It could not sleep for thinking of the friendly love that had provided such a happy morning to come. And when the first of the morning light brought all the Tanners downstairs the tree fairly shook with pleasure, amid the wonder and the glee of that Christmas day.

As for the servants of Santa Claus, they had never had such a merry Christmas before. Their hearts were so warm that they did not mind the frost. They sang over the pleasure of giving pleasure and relief. They said they knew that Santa Claus had to live up North so that he could cool off after his warm interest in the happiness of others. They addressed him in verses that must have made him jollier than ever, calling him:

THE MAGIC MAN
There is a man who lives up north
All clad in robes and furs,
And every year he sails forth
As love his going spurs.

He mitigates the winter's cold
That otherwise would freeze,
And keeps himself from growing old
By tending Christmas trees.

The children for his coming wait,
So do the old folks, too;
Unhappiness goes out the gate
When Santa comes to you.

And their own presents never seemed so large and good before.

Speaking of his early writings, Coningsby Dawson says: "A mistake I made was that I did not see my story as a whole when I started; I had no idea when and how the last chapter would finish. Now of whatever else I am ignorant, I know my skeleton, my beginning, my middle and my end before ever I take up my pen."

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel, and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents, and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it cannot salivate. Give it to the children, because it does not upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.
